PROBLEM SOLVING

Finding Smart Solutions Quickly

The one constant in business and life is that every day will bring a new set of problems. This masterclass will equip you with tried and tested tools for different occasions to enable you to see every problem as a challenge and empower you to turn each of these into opportunities.

Too often when faced with a problem we make the mistake of reacting, instead of slowing everything down and responding to the challenge. We explore in practical terms how this can be done, especially when the pressure is on and timelines tight, drawing on the experiences of the group and facilitator.

Reacting to a problem as it presents itself means going straight to solution mode before first truly understanding. This can result in solving the presenting problem rather than the real problem. Thus, we need the right tools to interrogate and understand.

When you get to the final phase of problem range of possible solutions can be overwhelming. Objective assessment of solutions is critical to help you determine how to move forward and also how to sell this solution up the line in your business so you get the necessary buy-in and sign off.
